A CHOCOLATE SOIREE

Members of Club 2-1-1 and Friends of the Museum of Discovery and Science came together for an evening that celebrated all things chocolate. The Sweet Soiree, The Science of Chocolate offered an opportunity for guests at the museum to learn more about the luscious stuff through interactive presentations. The fun included a chocolate slime demonstration and learning how to test the density of chocolate.

Partygoers munched treats from Hoffman's Chocolate and hors d'oeuvres from TAPS Restaurant and Bar, and slaked their thirst with Keurig coffee, cocktails and wine.

Club 2-1-1 is a support group for 2-1-1 Broward, a helpline offering crisis intervention assistance, emotional support and health and human services referrals. Members each pay $211 in annual dues. Friends of MODS support the museum, which offers science exhibits, programs and films for children and adults. The evening was not billed as a fundraiser, but a silent auction earned about $2,200 to be divided between the organizations.

Friends of MODS auxiliary chair Nila Do, Fred Meltzer, president of Hoffman's Chocolate, Sheila Smith, CEO of 2-1-1 Broward, and Kim Cavendish, CEO of MODS, at the Sweet Soiree.

Marc Infante, Philip Snyder, Michael Wild and David Black at the Sweet Soiree.

Bob Birdsong and Yvette Roulette at the Sweet Soiree at the Museum of Discovery and Science.